Young Scholars Program

The Mont Pelerin Society (MPS) continues an active program to engage younger members and recruit new young scholars with the potential to become members in the future. Those efforts include organizing Young Scholars Program sessions at the MPS 2027 Regional Meeting in Buenos Aires, Argentina, for scholars aged 35 years or younger to present their research and engage with scholars and members of the Society.

The MPS 2027 Regional Meeting, marking the 80th anniversary of Society's founding, will focus on A New Liberal Momentum? Lessons from Latin America to the World. At a moment when several Latin American countries are revisiting the principles of liberty, free enterprise, and limited government, the meeting will explore whether the region is witnessing the emergence of a new liberal momentum—and the lessons it offers the world.

The Young Scholars Program Committee welcomes submissions on all topics related to the aims of The Mont Pelerin Society. We encourage papers that engage with the meeting's central theme and examine contemporary or historical questions concerning liberty, free enterprise, limited government, institutions, political economy, economic development, and the intellectual and cultural foundations of a free society.

We particularly encourage research that brings Latin American experiences into conversation with broader questions about liberalism and the future of free societies. Submissions may address developments within Latin America, comparative experiences across countries or regions, or theoretical and historical questions illuminated by the Latin American experience.

The Young Scholars Program is intended to be cross-disciplinary, welcoming high-quality research in economics and other social sciences, as well as related disciplines appropriate to the Society's aims.

Young Scholars will be expected to participate fully in the meeting, engage in a colloquia-style session exploring the Society's purposes and history, and attend a special welcome reception organized for them.

Young Scholars Program Sessions

MPS Young Scholars Program sessions will feature short presentations by selected young scholars, followed by discussion and engagement with other participants in the session.

Proposals should represent new research of the type that one would present at a professional association meeting in the appropriate discipline. Successful applicants will be expected to participate actively in the Young Scholars Program and in the broader conference.

Proposals will be evaluated based on:

- The importance and originality of the research question;
- The quality and clarity of the proposed approach;
- The contribution of the paper to the relevant scholarly literature;
- Its relevance to the theme of the MPS 2027 Regional Meeting;
- Its potential contribution to the broader intellectual objectives of The Mont Pelerin Society;
- Its fit with the other papers selected for the MPS Young Scholars Program.
